Pacific States concedes that the Commission's reasoning was reasonable. Pacific

States emphasizes, however, that because SDG&E did not properly *819 request the Commission to promulgate new rules to govern the 2002 rates, the Commission lacked any valid reason for reconsidering the jurisdiction of the previous SDG&E proceedings. Pacific States did not request the Commission to review the classification structure on rehearing and, as a result, it asserts it is entitled to a full evidentiary hearing on all issues. See SDG&E, supra, 40 S.Cal.P.U.C.2d at 741. As a result of the reconsideration, Pacific States argues, it should be permitted an evidentiary hearing to ascertain the exact effect and impact of the Commission's decision. This is incorrect. As Pacific States correctly explains, a change in a classification structure does not alter the underlying evidence on which the Commission based its original determination. The Commission reopened its examination of SDG&E's 1972 classification structure and, as a result, reexamined the classification structure applicable to the West Coast and New York
